Access to Health Care

Access to quality health care is an important issue when your family is moving to a new area. But quality health care isn't an issue in Union County – there's an abundance of it.

More than 120 physicians practice in specialties from cardiology to pediatrics, from oncology to radiology. The county also has health professionals in chiropractic, podiatry, optometry, dentistry and other fields. Although all physicians have offices in Union County, some are based in nearby Charlotte and hold non-daily hours in Union County. Residents have choices in hospital care, emergency care and long-term care.

Carolina Medical Center-Union is the largest healthcare provider in the county, maintaining a 225-bed facility with acute and long-term care services. Union Regional Medical Center is part of Carolinas HealthCare System, the largest healthcare system in the Carolinas and one of the largest public systems in the nation. This affiliation ensures that area residents have excellent healthcare in their community while having access to other services available through an integrated healthcare system.

In 2002, URMC completed an 85,000-square-foot $47 million expansion to accommodate the dramatic increases in service demands. A two-story Outpatient Treatment Pavilion includes a cancer treatment center with radiation and medical oncology services, a state of the art Imaging Center and an expanded Rehabilitation Services department.

Each year, more than 1,300 babies are born at CMC-Union in its Women's and Children's Center. The hospital's six luxurious labor, delivery and (LDR) suites provide a comfortable and homelike setting for the arrival of a new baby. A variety of educational classes for expectant families are also available through the Women and Children's Center.

The surgical services department currently has seven operating suites, where physicians perform an average of 550 surgery cases each month. Local residents benefit from the convenience of both inpatient and outpatients surgical care.

The hospital's expanded emergency department serves more than 3,300 patients each month, providing treatment for major and minor emergencies. The department is equipped with trauma and treatment rooms for cardiac, obstetric, pediatric, ophthalmic and orthopedic emergencies and a fast-track Emergency area. Union EMS and MedCenter Air support trauma care.

Union Regional also offers a wide range of healthcare services in the privacy of patients' homes through CMC-Union Home Care. Each year, skilled Home Care professionals provide such services as wound care and dressing changes, medication instruction and diabetic and colostomy care.

CMC-Union has effectively built a solid reputation on its motto, “So Advanced, So Close.”

Union County residents are fortunate to have a second hospital nearby. Located just west of the Union-Mecklenburg county border in Matthews, Presbyterian Hospital Matthews provides care to many residents in western Union County. The 102-bed facility provides inpatient and outpatient surgery, laboratory, critical care services and a 24-hour emergency room. A maternity center has a 13-bed nursery and 12 labor/deliver/recovery/ postpartum suites decorated with homelike touches. Prenatal classes are available for patients, grandparents and siblings.

Presbyterian is affiliated with Winston Salem based Novant Healthcare, an integrated non-profit system that includes three Presbyterian-owned physician practices in Union County. Critical care transport is available between Presbyterian Matthews and Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte.

Parks & Recreation

Recreation is a big part of life in Union County, as evidenced by the large number of athletic associations, ball fields, parks, tournaments, golf courses and pick-up games.

If you love the links, you have found the right place. Union County's gently rolling wooded hills and mild climate make it a twelve-month golfers' paradise. With three public courses, six semi-private golf clubs, and two private country clubs, you can easily find the one that's right for you. Courses await you designed by Jack Nicklaus and Donald Ross.

If you're a spectator, not a player, Wingate University competes in football, soccer, basketball, volleyball, baseball, softball, golf and tennis. All areas of the county have recreational facilities, most with playgrounds and ball fields.

In Monroe, the Parks and Recreation Department provides programs, fitness classes, sports leagues and summer day camps. The city operates the Monroe Golf Course and Country Club on U.S.601 South. That facility features an 18-hole golf course, picnic area and nature trail.

Monroe also operates the Monroe Aquatics and Fitness Center on Hanover Drive. Featuring a 25-yard indoor pool, basketball and racquetball courts, running/walking track and fitness equipment, the center also has a water park, whirlpool, sauna, steam room, massage and on-site child care to pamper you. Yoga, aerobics, martial arts and swim classes are available, as well as a wellness program, offered by Union Regional Medical Center there.

The City of Monroe is developing a 30-acre tract on the city's western edge - plans for the Parks Williams Athletic Complex call for soccer and softball fields, a multipurpose field, walking trails, a community park, children's playground, restrooms and parking.

The county's largest recreation facility is Cane Creek Park, a family-oriented venue on 1,050 acres of land surrounding a 350-acre trophy bass lake in southern Union County. Water is the key to Cane Creek, including fishing, swimming and boating. The lake is home to some of the best largemouth bass fishing in the state as well as bluegill, crappie and catfish. A boat ramp lets you bring your own boat and pick your favorite fishing spot. Large covered picnic shelters with power, water, grill and picnic tables let visitors enjoy just-caught fish or any other picnic you choose.

Park activities are not restricted to daytime. At the family camping area, you can relax at one of 108 campsites overlooking the lake. The group camping area features 15 tent sites and cabins to accommodate six people. Swimming, hiking, biking and horse trails also are available.

Union County has opened a second district park in the east, near Wingate. Jesse Helms Park, located on a 250-acre tract on Presson Road, spreads across gently rolling wooded land. Development is long term and will begin within two years. Amenities include athletic fields, hiking trails, picnic areas and natural areas. An agricultural center including meeting space and offices will open in 2006.

Union County is home to a large equestrian population and many private stables. In addition, the Charlotte Steeplechase holds its Queen's Cup races the last Saturday in April at the beautiful Brooklandwood racecourse in Mineral Springs. The race draws crowds in excess of 20,000.

The races are a combination of all-day tailgating and racing, which take equal prominence. The day's festivities include Jack Russell Terrier races, hat contests, tailgate contests for the most elaborate, creative and whimsical tailgate spreads, as well as a raffle for various prizes.

If you're looking for more, look up the road in Charlotte. The Carolina Panthers offer excitement for NFL fans. Don't worry if you're not a football fan, there are many more pro sports opportunities. The Charlotte Bobcats have been competing in the NBA for three years.

The Charlotte Knights of the AAA International League play at Knights Castle, off I-77 in Fort Mill, S.C. The Charlotte Checkers, who skate at Independence Arena on Independence Boulevard, are members of the East Coast Hockey League. Each spring and summer, the Charlotte Eagles and Lady Eagles keep the adrenalin of soccer fans pumping. In May and October, Lowe's Motor Speedway, off I-85 in Cabarrus County, comes alive with the best of NASCAR racing, including the Coca-Cola 600 and the UAW-GM Quality 500.

Libraries

The Union County Public Library System has doubled the size of its facilities in the last two years. Patrons can now access over 250,000 materials, including books, videos, tapes, DVDs, CDs, newspapers and magazines. Three libraries are open seven days a week (Monroe, Marshville and Union West). Computer classes are available on a regular basis.

A newly remodeled and expanded 110,000 item 43,000-square-foot main library in Monroe is the system's largest facility. It contains over 50 public computers, a toddler area, genealogy/history room and two sizable meeting rooms. The Union West Regional Library in Indian Trail contains over 40,000 items 12,000 square feet with more than 30 public computers and one sizable meeting room.

The Waxhaw facility has been renovated and expanded to 12,000 volumes 2,900 square feet including twelve public computers, a children's play area, meeting room and parking. Marshville is proud of its new 8,800-square-foot Lois Morgan Edwards Memorial Library. The facility boasts 32,000 volumes and 18 public computers. Other amenities include raw beam construction a stone fireplace and attractive cherry wood shelving. A small library is located in Unionville town hall. It includes a collection of 5,000 items, three public computers, courier service access to main system and children's story time on Friday.
